
Note: each "n=" reports the number of clusters and, where patients are shown, the number of individuals. Sequence headers give clusters randomly assigned and patients included under that sequence. Period cells give, for that sequence and period, who received the intended intervention condition, losses and exclusions after randomisation (with reasons), and who were analysed for the primary outcome. Where informative, also report average cluster size and the variance of cluster sizes.